Horſe-Guards, Whitehall, Auguſt 12.

THE Diſpatches, of which the following are Extracts, have been received from Sir Charles Grey, K. B. by the Right Hon. Henry Dundas, One of His Majeſty's Principal Secretaries of State.

Guadaloupe, June 11, 1794.

WE received an Expreſs at St. Chriſtopher on the 4th Inſtant, with the unwelome News of the Deceaſe of Major-General Dundas, who died of a Fever at Guadaloupe. after a few Days Illneſs; and in him His Majeſty and his Country loſe one of their braveſt and beſt Officers, and a moſt worthy Man. I, too, feel ſeverely the Loſs of ſo able an Aſſiſtant on this arduous Service, and a valuable Friend ever to be lamented. Before Day of the 5th another Expreſs arrived at St. Chriſtopher's from Guadaloupe, with Intelligence that ſeveral Sail of French Line of Battle Ships, with Frigates, Tranſports and 2000 Land Forces on Board, had appeard off Point à Petre, Grande Terre, on the 3d Inſtant.

The Admiral made immediate Sail for Guadaloupe, and we reached Baſſe Terre in the Afternoon of the 7th Inſtant, receiving further Intelligence that the Enemy had landed, forced Fort Fleur d'Epée before Day of the 6th Inſtant, and were actually in Poſſeſſion of it, with Fort Louis, Fort Government, the Town of Point à Petre, &c. and their Shipping anchored in the Harbour. I landed immediately at Baſſe Terre, and the Admiral proceeded, with the Ships of War, to Point à Petre, where he anchored at Noon of the 8th Inſtant, during which I continued viſiting the Poſts, and giving the neceſſary Orders at Baſſe Terre; and in the Evening of the 9th following I returned to the Boyne, to concert Meaſures with the Admiral for regaining Point à Petre and Grande Terre. We have ſent to the different Iſlands to collect all the Force that can be ſpared, in particular the Flank Companies, Part of whom are already arrived; and as every Effort ſhall be made on our Part, at the ſame Time that we can thoroughly depend on the Bravery and Exertions of our Troops and Seamen, I hope ſoon to render a good Account of this ſecond Expedition, having their Ships completely blocked up within the Inner Harbour, which are now found to conſiſt of Two Frigates, One Corvette, Two large Ships, appearing to be armed en Flute, and Two other Ships within Land, ſo that it cannot be exactly diſcovered what they are. Their Troops conſiſt of about 1500 Men, joined by ſome Mulattoes and Negroes, ſince landing, of courſe. I tranſmit herewith the Report and Returns of Lieutenant-Colonel Drummond, of the 43d Regiment, who commanded at Fort Fleur d'Epée and Point à Petre, at the Time of its being retaken by the French; which Armament that retook it ſailed from Rochefort about the 25th of April laſt, having had a Paſſage of Forty-one Days.

SIR, Baſſe Terre, June 9, 1794.

I Embrace the earlieſt Opportunity to inform you of the Arrival of a Squadron of French Men of War at the Iſland of Guadaloupe, and of the Loſs of Fort Fleur d'Epée, which was taken by Storm on Friday the 6th Inſtant.

On Tueſday the 3d Inſtant I received Intelligence from Captain M'Dowall, of the 43d Regiment, at St. Ann's, that Nine Ships, bearing the National Colours of France, were then off the Town of St. Francois, and ſeemed to be ſailing along the Coaſt towards Point à Petre. This Report was confirmed ſoon afterwards by the Arrival of other Expreſſes from different Parts of the Colonies; and at Half paſt Four o'Clock the French Squadron, conſiſting, as I am informed, of Two Ships of Fifty Guns, One of Forty Guns, armed en Flute, One Frigate with Five Tranſports, came to Anchor about a Mile and a Half beyond the Village of Gozier, and immediately began to diſembark their Troops.

On the Receipt of Captain M'Dowall's Letter, I encloſed a Copy of it to Major-General Dundas, and on the Arrival of the French Fleet I ſent a Second Expreſs to Baſſe Terre, explaining the Nature of my Situation, and requeſting a Reinforcement, as it was generally ſuppoſed the Enemy meant to attack us in the Evening of the 4th Inſtant; and as I had received no Anſwer to my Letters to Major-General Dundas, I ſent to Captain Buchanan, of the 39th Regiment, who I was informed was then at Marygat with Seventy Men, to deſire he would march with all poſſible Expedition to our Aſſiſtance; but the Anſwer I received to thoſe Applications was One Letter from Major Maitland, ſaying Major-General Dundas was dead, and that he had communicated my Diſpatches to Lieutenant-Colonel Blundell, with a Second from the Lieutenant-Colonel, expreſſing a Doubt whether it would be prudent in him to afford me any Aſſiſtance or no. The Communications were ſeconded by the Two incloſed Letters, which were put into my Hands a few Hours before the Enemy attacked the Fort. On the Evening of the 3d Inſtant I took every Precaution to ſtrengthen the Poſt of Fort Fleur d'Epée, and to make the beſt poſſible Defence in caſe of an Attack, that the Nature of our Situation would allow. All the detached Companies of the 43d Regiment were ordered in; the Inhabitants were aſſembled, and arrived in their ſeveral Pariſhes, as well as all the Engliſh Merchants and Sailors at Point à Petre; and at Six o'Clock on Wedneſday Morning I was happy to find I had a Body of near Three Hundred Men at the Fort, which I was in Hopes would have proved formidable enough to counteract any offenſive Operations of the Enemy, till I could procure a Military Reinforcement from Baſſe Terre.

During the Whole of Wedneſday the 4th, and Thurſday the 5th Inſtant, the Enemy contented themſelves with plundering and burning the Houſes and Eſtates of ſome Gentlemen in the Vicinity of Gozier.

I had every Reaſon to believe, from the Information of the Parties ſent out to reconnoitre the Enemy on the 4th Inſtant, that the whole of their Force did not amount to more than Three Hundred Men, and that they were not only worn out by the Length of their Voyage, but fatigued alſo with the Excels they had committed from the Moment of their Landing. Impreſſed with this Idea, the Royaliſts in the

Fore

Fort were anxious to march out, and, if poſſible, ſurprize the Enemy at their Poſt, by which Means we might have cut off their Communication with any diſaffected People in the Colony, and probably have forced them back again to their Ships.

I was perſuaded ſuch an Attempt might be of Service, if effected with Reſolution, and, at the repeated Solicitations of the Royaliſts, I permitted them to aſſemble One Hundred and Eighty Volunteers, and put them under the Command of Captain M'Dowall, of the 43d Regiment, who offered to direct their Operations. The Party marched from the Fort about Eight o'Clock in the Evening; but, I am ſorry to ſay, my Hopes of the Benefit we might have derived from the Succeſs of this Attempt were entirely defeated, by their Want of Steadineſs and Diſcipline.

In marching along the Road leading to Gozier, a few Shot were fired, probably by a Picquet of the Enemy's, from the Buſhes at the Side of the Road: The moſt ſhameful Panick inſtantly prevailed throughout the whole Party: A general Diſcharge of Muſquetry commenced; many of them threw away their Arms and deſerted to the Town; ſome few returned to Fleur d'Epée, and it was with the greateſt Difficulty Captain M'Dowall could collect about Thirty of them together, whom he marched ſome Minutes after into the Fort. I am ſorry to add, that the next Morning were found Three of the Royaliſts dead, and Four wounded.

On the Morning of Thurſday the 5th Inſtant the Enemy landed Thirteen Boats crowded with Sailors, and, from the Information of a Priſoner brought into the Fort, I learnt it was their Intention to attack us that Night, and that their Numbers amounted to from Twelve to Fifteen Hundred Men. As I ſaw, from the Conduct of the Royaliſts on the preceding Night, that I had very little to hope from their Steadineſs and Reſolution, I took the Precaution to defend the Gate, and line the weakeſt Part of the Work, with the Soldiers of the 43d Regiment, keeping a ſmall Body as a Corps de Reſerve, to act on the Approach of the Enemy.

At Eleven o'Clock a Party of Horſe, that had been ſent out to reconnoitre, returned, and informed me the Enemy were on their March, and in Poſſeſſion of the Village of Gozier. At One o'Clock on Friday Morning the advanced Picquet came into the Fort, and we then diſtinctly heard the Approach of the Enemy along the Road leading from the Village. We inſtantly commenced a Fire of Grape Shot from One Twenty-four Pounder and Two Field Pieces, which threw them into great Confuſion, and muſt have been attended with conſiderable Effect. The Enemy halted for Two or Three Minutes, and then, at the Perſuaſion of their Officers, marched on to the Foot of the Hill, and began to ſtorm the Work.

We kept up a very heavy Fire of Muſquetry for about Fifteen Minutes: The Enemy were evidently repulſed, and I am perſuaded, that had the Royaliſts acted with Reſolution at that Moment, we might have maintained our Ground; but, on the Firing ceaſing, Numbers of them concluded the Place loſt, and, abandoning their Poſts, ran in Crowds towards the Gate. It was in vain for the Soldiers of the 43d Regiment to oppoſe their Progreſs; the Gates were laid open, and nearly One Half of the whole Body deſerted to the Town.

The Gates were again cloſed as ſoon as poſſible, and the ſmall Body of the 43d Regiment, which I had kept in Reſerve, moved on to the Attack. They oppoſed the Entrance of the Enemy for ſome Time, but the Side of the Work having been abandoned and left entirely defenceleſs, we found ourſelves nearly ſurrounded, and I then ordered the Soldiers I had with me to charge their Bayonets, and retire a few Paces to a Spot where we might be better able to defend ourſelves. Here we halted, and received a Volley of Muſquetry from a Number of the Enemy that had formed themſelves in a Body in our Front.

The Crowd of People that now came ruſhing from every Quarter towards the Gate rendered every Effort of the Soldiers ineffectual: Overpowered as they were, they found themſelves diſperſed, and obliged to retire. I conſulted with Two or Three Officers, that continued at my Side, upon the Poſſibility of rallying once more, and ſtill defending the Place; but it was their general Opinion that the Fort was no longer tenable, and that we ought to retire; I therefore permitted the Gate to be opened, and ordered a Retreat to Fort Louis.

On my Arrival at Fort Louis I aſſembled the Soldiers, with a Reſolution to defend the Poſt; but finding that I had not quite Forty Men, and that it would be impoſſible to hold out againſt the Enemy, I thought it more prudent to retire, and ſave the Remains of the Regiment, than to ſurrender them Priſoners of War.

I, in conſequence, ordered the Men to march; and, collecting the Detachment at Fort Government, with the Soldiers that had eſcaped ſingly from Fleur d'Epée, I proceeded to Petit Canal; and, having embarked in Two Boats, ſet Sail from Baſſe Terre, where we arrived at Eleven o'Clock Yeſterday Morning.

Incloſed I have the Honour to tranſmit to your Excellency a Return of the preſent State of the 43d Regiment, but it is not in my Power to determine the Number of our Killed and Wounded; neither can I form any Opinion of the Loſs ſuſtained by the Royaliſts at Fleur d'Epée; but I am apprehenſive it muſt have been very conſiderable. I am ſorry to add, that Captain Suckling, of the Britiſh Artillery, was wounded with a Bayonet in the Breaſt, and left at Point à Pitre.

I cannot conclude this Letter without expreſſing my Approbation of the Conduct of the Officers and Soldiers under my Command: Their Intrepidity in meeting any Danger, and their Exertions in rallying our Force, were conſpicuous in the Extreme, and ſuch as will ever claim my warmeſt Acknowledgements.

I have the Honor to be,
SIR,
Your Excellency's moſt obedient very humble Servant,

Point à Petre, Guadaloupe, June 13, 1794.

I Have ſome Force already at the Town and Battery of Petit Bourgh, and ſhall make a Landing on the Side of Fort Fleur d'Epeé and Point à Petre in a Day or Two; and I hope to regain our Conqueſt before any Length of Time can elapſe, as every Effort will be made to accompliſh it ſpeedily.

Pointe à Petre, Guadaloupe, June 14, 1794.

THE Enemy having croſſed the Mouth of the Harbour from the Town of Point à Petre, and encamped at the Poſt of St. Jean or Gabaree, the oppoſite Point, I judged it a favourable Opportunity of attacking them, which was done accordingly at Eleven o'Clock laſt Night, under the Command of Brigadier-General Dundas, who executed this Service with ſuch Spirit and good Conduct as to kill a conſiderable Number of them, and the others fled in the utmoſt Conſternation, took to the Water to ſwim acroſs the Harbour, in which Situation they were fired on, and many more killed. Brevet Major Roſs, of the 31ſt Regiment, who was with the Light Infantry, behaved with great Gallantry and good Conduct on this Occaſion, as he has done on every other. The Enemy's Camp, Colours, Baggage, &c. with one Piece of Cannon, fell into our Hands, but no Priſoners that I have yet heard of; a Party was however in purſuit of thoſe who had not thrown themſelves into the Water, and fled with equal Precipitation by Land. A Serjeant, Corporal, and Eight Privates of our Light Infantry, are wounded, but not one killed. This Report is juſt brought to me by Captain Ogle, one of my Aide-de-Camps, who was preſent.

In juſtice to the Legiſlature of St. Chriſtopher's, with Preſident Stanley at their Head, and that of Antigua, with Preſident Byam at their Head, I have to report the moſt laudable Exertions in them to raiſe Seamen for the Navy on this Service, nor have they been unſucceſsful.
